End-to-End GIS Services

Packages for organizations with little or no in-house GIS expertise

What Are End-to-End GIS Services?

With End-to-End GIS Services, Pro-West acts as part of your team to provide a complete GIS function. For many organizations, this means Pro-West “is” their GIS team.

Each organization receives a unique package aligned with their needs. Before starting work, Pro-West collaborates with your team to define your needs and the time and budget required to meet those needs. Using this as the foundation, we build your end-to-end GIS package.

Organizations work with us for a defined period of time, delivering a set of goals that can span the GIS spectrum – for example, enterprise GIS implementation, solution deployment, data migration or integrating GIS with other business systems.

On-Site Option

If desired, an on-site component can be built into your package. A Pro-West team member will spend time at your facility, performing tasks that will generate the greatest value for the organization from our time on-site.

How Does It Work?

Once your goals are defined, Pro-West experts will step in as required to perform specific tasks. For example, you may work with a Pro-West Solutions Architect to implement a public-facing ArcGIS Online application, and you may work with another team member to integrate your tax system with GIS, or migrate your data to a standard format.

A Pro-West Project Manager will remain your primary point of contact and will coordinate the right resources to make you successful.

Regular check-in meetings and quarterly education webinars are built into all End-to-End GIS packages.

Are End-to-End GIS Services Right for My Organization?

If your organization is challenged by a lack of GIS expertise on your team, has insufficient budget or workload to hire a full-time GIS resource, or simply requires team augmentation to reach your goals, an End-to-End GIS package may be the right fit.
